

Andrew Norman

I have been coxing (on and off) since 2001, and have also experienced most aspects of rowing. I coxed at my school, before taking up sculling in my last couple of years – I am still a keen single sculler. At Cambridge I have rowed in both Lent and May Bumps in my college's 2nd VIII, and this year have been helping out with coaching our lower boats, and have also subbed in as a cox plenty during the year (I think I've coxed almost every boat in the club, from our first men's eight to the 3rd women's novice boat). I also have experience of marshalling and umpiring in the Small Boats Regatta and Bumps races.

I have been closely involved in training our novice coxes at Pembroke this year – see <http://tinyurl.com/6c5qon> – and I am keen to ensure that all coxes on the Cam are competent as coxing representative on the CUCBC committee. I am keen to improve the standard of college coxing generally, since proficient coxing is so essential for the safety of all river users, and for having productive outings.

I think I'm fairly organized and reliable, and look forward to helping to keep the Cam running smoothly during term time, and helping to run Lent and May Bumps, and all the other CUCBC races, along with the rest of the committee.
